

LEADERS SPLIT ON TAX MEASURE

Divided in Opinion Regarding Taxation Methods.

SOME DESIRE TO REWRITE MEASURE

Senator Smoot Has Substitute To Offer.

Smoot Idea, Based on Sales or Turnover System, Is Stoutly Opposed—Penrose Plans a Completed Bill Soon.

Washington, Aug. 31.—Republican leaders of congress are divided, today, on taxation.

With the senate finance committee scheduled to begin work tomorrow on the tax-revision bill passed by the house, its Republican members are divided on whether the measure ought to be rewritten entirely, or discarded altogether.

Senator Smoot, Republican, Utah, intends to offer a substitute for it based upon the sales or turnover system of taxation he has repeatedly but unsuccessfully urged. He also would have the repeal of the excess-profits tax made retroactive to January 1, 1921. The date fixed January 1, 1922, as the date for the expiration of the tax. Senator Penrose, Republican, Pennsylvania, the committee chairman, has indicated he did not think business would complain much if the house provision were retained, as business reverses this year would render the tax a source of comparatively little revenue anyhow.

Clashes between Penrose and Smoot before the senate finance committee is ready to report a revised tax bill to the senate, are declared to be inevitable.

Sentiment in and out of congress in favor of the sales tax is recognized by Penrose and other Republican senators opposed to it as growing rapidly stronger, but they declare they will have nothing to do with it.

Smoot is prepared, however, to fight hard for a manufacturer's tax of three per cent, which he would have written into the new tax law as a form of taxation similar to the sales tax.

Penrose hopes to have the tax bill ready for senate action when that body reconvenes, September 21, to prevent further delay in relieving the country's tax burdens.

SETTLEMENT OF YAP QUESTION

Indicted That Mandate Trouble Is Passed.

OFFICIAL NOTICE OF HUNGARIAN TREATY

American State Department Receives Information—Naval Estimates Prepared.

Tokyo, Aug. 31.—The International News service learns from an official source it is "very probable" that cables from the United States reporting that a settlement of the Yap mandate question has been reached are correct.

Although upon the filing of this despatch the foreign office has received no official notification from Ambassador Shidehara in Washington, it is known here that the negotiations have reached such a stage that an agreement could be expected at any time.

Official Notice.

Washington, Aug. 31.—Official notification of the signing of a treaty of peace between the United States and Hungary was received by the state department, this afternoon. United States Commissioner Smith is understood to have signed for the United States.

No statement was made as to the content of the treaty, but it is understood to be similar to that signed with Germany, protecting American rights under the Versailles treaty by exempting this nation from any of the responsibilities of that pact.

Naval Estimates.

Washington, Aug. 31.—Despite the forthcoming armament-limitation conference, the navy will ask for appropriations for the year 1922-23, in excess of the approximate appropriation of $300,000,000 for the current year, it was learned today.

The naval estimates for 1922-23 will be submitted to Budget Director Davies tomorrow and will show that the navy has no disposition to weaken its power on the strength of a possible international agreement for disarmament.

There will be no decrease in the appropriations asked for ships or guns, and an increased appropriation will be asked for aeroplane carriers. Navy officials take the position that the naval establishment must be kept in efficient fighting trim and that reduction of expenditures cannot be permitted to interfere with the efficiency of the sea defenses of the nation.

Secretary Denby has made an effort to reduce expenditures in some of the less vital branches of the navy.

MONTANA MAN ARRESTED FOR DOING THIS STUNT

If ever you go to Yosemite National park, in California, don't try to do this stunt at Overhanging rock, at Glacier Point. If you do there is a ranger who is ready to arrest you for tempting death, just as Larry Keegan, of Butte, Montana, was arrested and then brought before Superintendent Lewis, of the park force, who is firm in his contention that he wants no foolhardy person to attempt to perform this trick. An official sign on a nearby post reads as follows: "It is 3,000 feet to the bottom and no undertaker to meet you. Take no chances. There is a difference between bravery and just plain foolishness. If you try this trick you will be arrested."

BOY MAKES BUSINESS OF ROBBERY APPARENTLY

Gets $20 from Doctor. Seven from Another.

Dr. J. H. Jackson, of east Church street, had $20 taken from his cash drawer Monday morning and Dr. Elizabeth Cheatham had seven dollars taken from her pocketbook the same day. The theft is supposed to have been committed by the same person, a boy appearing to be about sixteen years of age having been at both places.

The theft at the Jackson home was committed while Dr. Jackson was away from home and while his wife was in the rear yard. A neighbor saw a boy on a bicycle stop at the Jackson home and go in.

The boy came into Dr. Cheatham's office and said he wished to wait for his mother. The mother did not appear and the boy waited. Dr. Cheatham left the room to look after her dinner and later the boy said he would not wait any longer. It was after that that the doctor noticed the money was missing.

The same boy stopped at other residences in the neighborhood but nothing was missed. Last spring he entered the office of Dr. Maud Bull and made the same excuse about waiting for his mother. He also visited other physicians' offices and residences at that time.

TAFT AND DAUGHERTY ARE ON THE PROGRAM

National Association of Attorneys General Elects Officers for Coming Year.

Carson, of Pennsylvania. Vice Mayor Jacobs, of Cincinnati, welcomed the delegates on behalf of Cincinnati and Hamilton county.

The sessions, today, were taken up mainly with addresses.

United States Solicitor General James Beck, in his address, declared that the "spirit of lawlessness" was rampant throughout the world today.

"Records show," Mr. Beck declared, "that there is a tremendous increase in crime, but there is also a mad desire for pleasure such as no living man can recall in other years."

Speaking of the revolt against commerce, the solicitor said: "Who can question but that this is preeminently the age of sham and counterfeits?"

Two distinguished sons of Ohio, Chief Justice William Howard Taft, of the United States supreme court, and Attorney General Daugherty will address the convention this afternoon.

Mr. Daugherty's address will deal principally with relief for the individual taxpayer and the prohibition enforcement. General Daugherty expressed considerable concern, this morning, over the West Virginia miners' situation.

Chief Justice Taft is to speak at the joint meeting of the judicial sections of Ohio State and American bar associations at Hotel Gibson.

One of the most distinguished visitors is Justice P. V. Mignault, of the supreme court of Canada, who arrived this morning.

WILL HEAD OFF LOCAL STRIKES

Union Officials Warn Against Unauthorized Action.

MEN URGED TO REMAIN AT WORK

Brotherhood Agents Sent to Every Large Railroad Center To Watch Workers.

Chicago, Aug. 31.—Brotherhood leaders here predict that with the strike vote of the four large brotherhoods progressing and the vote of 500,000 shop workers favoring a strike already in, the railroad unions will present a united front within two weeks.

The union heads declare the men might accept the wage reduction of 12 1/2 per cent which became effective on July 1, provided they had not become dissatisfied on other questions. These included: Refusal of some railroads to meet with men to draw up working agreements covering the entire system; placing of some railroad shops in hands of local business men, thus escaping jurisdiction of the United States railroad labor board; refusal of some railroads to abide by the board's decisions, and abolishment of overtime pay for Sunday work for shopmen except in emergency cases.

Union leaders are exerting every effort to prevent local unauthorized strikes, pending taking of the "strike vote."

Union agents were sent to every large railroad center of the country, ostensibly to help set out the vote on the strike question, but also, it was learned, to keep the men on the job until the ballots are counted.

Messages were sent by B. M. Jewell, head of the railway department of the American Federation of Labor, and by other union leaders to local union organizations showing signs of restlessness, urging them to stay on the job. Threats of unauthorized strikes were received from several large railroad centers.

Wording of the ballot of the order of railway trainmen, which does not leave it discretionary with officers of the union to call a strike if members vote to "leave the service," was understood to be intended to appease clamorings of a considerable number of members of the union for immediate action.

The railroad managers profess to believe the railroads unions will not strike. They do not believe they will walk out because of present employment conditions. With five million men out of work they claim it would be easy to hire men to fill many of the strikers' places.

STEPS TO FRONT FOR CHILDREN

President Congratulates Mother of Nineteen Children.

TAKES INTEREST IN NEW YORK FAMILY

Father of Big Family To Be Given Raise in New York Department Store.

Washington, Aug. 31.—President Harding stepped to the front yesterday in behalf of the father of nineteen children—sixteen of them living—whi is working as a porter in a New York department store at $20 a week.

In sending his congratulations to the mother, Mrs. Domenico Zaccachea, of New York City, whose family group picture recently was printed in a newspaper, the president went back to his own home to tell how his mother, who had brought up eight children had expressed the hope prior to her death that she might have been the mother of eight more.

After Mrs. Zaccachea had replied to the president, telling of the great burden on the father in feeding and clothing his big family, Mr. Harding wrote to the merchant, asking if something could not be done for him, and the merchant promised to help.

The president's letter to the mother follows:

"My Dear Mrs. Zaccachea: "I noticed in the photographs section of one of the Sunday papers a picture of yourself, your husband and your very remarkable family of sixteen children. I can not resist expressing my very cordial congratulations. Perhaps I am moved to do so because of a little incident in my own life. My mother bore eight children and raised six of them to maturity.

"One afternoon, shortly before her death, we were all at my home holding a family reunion and she spoke of having borne eight children and said: 'with an affection most appealing to me, that she had been happy to bear eight children, and if she had her life to live over, she would have no desire to change it, except to bear eight more. I thought it was a beautiful thing for her to say, and the recollection of it inspired me to write my very cordial congratulations to you and add thereto my very best wishes.

"Very truly yours, "Warren G. Harding."

CARDINGTON FIRES DUE TO A TRACTION ENGINE

Austin Gardner Dies on Train in the West.

Cardington, O., Aug. 31.—[Special.]—A traction engine belonging to Ferd Payne Saturday afternoon set fire to two barns, one belonging to Frank Long and the other to Ray Coleman, on what is known as the Tarleton Peck property. The Long fire was extinguished with only about $100 damage, but the Coleman barn and contents were entirely consumed, together with a number of outbuildings and a crib full of corn. The barn contained six tons of hay and the heat and sparks set fire to a number of houses, but all were extinguished. The Coleman barn was a large one and the loss is partially covered by a $500 insurance.

The funeral of Austin Gardner was held Tuesday afternoon at the home of his mother, Mrs. P. F. Gardner, at Fulton. Mr. Gardner left his home at Mt. Glead a year ago for Phoenix, Arizona, hoping to regain his health, but finding his case hopeless started for home last week, accompanied by his wife and little daughter. The trip proved too much for him and he passed away on the train in Illinois. The body was taken from the train at Indianapolis, where a brother, J. W. Gardner, resides, and prepared for burial. Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Gardner came on with the wife and daughter, reaching Cardington Sunday evening. Mr. Gardner was thirty-five years old and, as long as health permitted, was employed by the Hydraulic Press company at Mt. Glead.

Miners Routed.
Logan, W. Va., Aug. 31.—Miners were routed in the first engagement in Logan county, at 7 a. m.

Sheriff Don Chaffin, in an official statement, declared a force of miners occupied the town of Blaser during the night.

This morning, the men charged up
Blair mountain from the town.

Logan sheriff's deputies in their first-line of defense at the top of Blair mountain, repelled the attack and the miners fled down the hill, the sheriff said.

John Gore, deputy sheriff of Logan county, was killed when the miners attacked. Reports of other casualties have not been verified.

Colonel William E. Eubank, in charge of state forces, telephoned Governor Morgan demanding all the reinforcements the governor can assemble.

The governor promised to rush more men to Logan county.

Governor Talks.
Charleston, Aug. 31.—Governor
E. F. Morgan, in a public statement this afternoon, declared that the offer of John L. Lewis, national president of the United Mine Workers, to cooperate with the governor in having the armed miners disperse is "hypocritical."

"Never at any time," said the governor, "did he offer assistance until he knew federal troops had been requested to suppress the insurrection. In truth, his agents in this district were responsible for the armed miners continuing their original march after they had agreed to disband and return to their homes following an address to them
by 'Mother' Jones."

Madison, West Virginia, Aug. 31.—
President Harding's proclamation calling upon the striking miners of West Virginia who are menacing the peace of Logan and Mingo counties, to disperse and return to their homes before noon tomorrow, or face the alternative of rigid martial law, had no effect upon the strikers this forenoon, because word of the president's proclamation did not reach here until today.

The president's ultimatum was telephoned from Pittsburgh, this morning. As nearly all the telephone wires in this part of the state have been cut, communication is almost at a standstill and it was necessary to send news of the proclamation by courier to the strikers who are assembled at Jeffery, five miles from here.

It will be necessary to spread word of the president's proclamation by courier to all the miners' concentration points and it is believed that it will be late today before all the miners are fully advised, according to District Attorney W. H. B. Mullens.

Miners are passing through here steadily to join the assemblage of 3,500 men already at Jeffery.

Reports current here today, but unofficial, were to the effect that the miners were determined to go through to Mingo county. Best information available here is that the new march, reported to have started late yesterday, has not yet been begun.

Large numbers of miners from other districts were in Madison, today, enroute to join the others at Jeffery. For two days they have been pouring through here on their way to their concentration point, near the Boone-Logan county border
All are armed.

There were no new developments today in the seizure by the miners of a train, Tuesday night, which they used to transport strikers from the Little Coal river and Danville districts to the concentration point at Jeffery. The miners returned their train to the yards here after they had used it for two trips.

Waiting Policy.
Washington, Aug. 31.—The federal government today, for once more following the watchful-waiting policy, with regard to West Virginia.

President Harding's proclamation demanding "all persons engaged in unlawful and insurrectionary proceedings to disperse and retire peaceably to their respective abodes on or before 12 o'clock noon of the first day of September," was being widely circulated today through the disordered regions of West Virginia.

The United Mine Workers, through Philip Murray, vice president, are urging the armed bands of miners in the Mingo district to return home and abandon their contemplated march. The enforcement now awaits the action of the members of the armed bands, while they determine whether they will defy the federal government and their union, or shall return to their homes.

By noon tomorrow, the government will move if the armed bands have not dispersed. Troops are ready to proceed into the West Virginia section either from Camp Dix
New Jersey, or Camp Sherman, O.
Chaffin, Ohio. The administration has given evidence that it intends no delay after noon tomorrow and that once martial law is proclaimed and federal troops are stationed in the Mingo regions that the government will rule with an iron hand.

Brigadier General H. H. Band-holtz, representative of the president, has returned to the scenes of the threatened troubles and will use his efforts to secure compliance with the presidential proclamation. He will give the word, at noon tomorrow, upon which the government will determine whether the president's command had quelled the threatened disorder or whether a military move must be made.

Ready for Duty.
Camp Dix, New Jersey, Aug. 31.—
The Twenty-sixth Infantry, with Colonel T. M. Anderson in command, was under arms here today, ready to take the next train, upon order, for the West Virginia coal fields. The regiment includes a machine-gun company. The non-commissioned officers are mainly World war veterans. Many of the regiment's members were recruited from the mountains of West Virginia.

Reaching Marmet.
Charleston, West Virginia, Aug.
31.—Hundreds of miners, this morning, were swarming into Marmet, ten miles east of here, where the first "army" for the march to Mingo assembled. This report was brought here by a man who passed through Marmet today.

The miners were moving out as fast as they came in, he said, going in the general direction of Boone county. Practically all were carrying rifles or other arms, he said.

This is the first actively reported movement in the present movement. The movement of miners through Marmet began early this morning. By 8 o'clock, the town was swarming with miners who came down from the Cabin creek districts.
No camp was being established, but there was a steady exodus towards Boone county, where the main force has assembled without striking distance of Logan county, through which they must pass to reach Mingo county, objective of the march.

The informant of the International News Service is a well-known man and responsible. He refuses to allow his name to be used, fearing violent reprisals if he did so.

At Huntington.
Huntington, West Virginia, Aug.
31.—Refugees from Boone and Logan counties, including many women, children and old men, are arriving here hourly today. Many of them are penniless and are being cared by local relief organizations.

Has Big Force.
Charleston, W. Va., Aug. 31.—
No material change has occurred in the situation along the Boone-Logan boundary line, where a clash between armed miners, numbering 3,500 or more and Logan county deputy sheriffs and state troops, appears imminent, according to reports reaching Governor E. F. Morgan and other officials here this morning.

Aeroplane, operating from Logan, will today distribute President Harding's proclamation, issued yesterday, giving the armed men until noon tomorrow to disperse. The effect of the proclamation is awaited with some misgivings here, where it is feared the movement has assumed too large proportions to be halted now.

Unless the situation is clearing up by noon Thursday, the movement of federal troops into West Virginia will begin then, according to statements from official sources here.

Sheriff Don Chaffin, of Logan, is understood to have under his direc-

CLARK, MARY ELLEN, DAUGHTER OF WASHINGTON AND MARY WILLIAMS CLARK, WAS BORN IN THOMPSON TOWNSHIP, DELAWARE COUNTY, OHIO, JULY 17, 1848, DEPARTED THIS LIFE AUGUST 25, 1921, AGED SEVENTY-TWO YEARS, ONE MONTH AND EIGHT DAYS.

In the year, 1866, the father died.
The family then moved to Richmond, where Miss Clark spent the most of her life. She came to Agosta in March, 1920, to live with her sister, Mrs. Maria Redding, where she resided at the time of her death.

Miss Clark, early in life accepted Jesus Christ as her Saviour and her friend and in his friendship she took great delight. She seemed constantly at her Master's business, doing what she could to perpetuate this golden friendship and to brighten other lives in the same rich companionship. She recognized the weakness of mankind and was ever charitable with its frailties. She chose the Christian church, in which she directed her energies for the coming kingdom. She later united with the Baptist church. Consistent and faithful, she labored till the close of the day, until the Master Workman invited her from labor to reward. Being very sorely afflicted for more than a year, though bearing it patiently, she was deprived of much of the joy of service. A most coveted compliment to her is the remark, "She was held in high esteem by her neighbors and friends who knew her best." Out of a family of twelve, two are still living, Mrs. Nancy Llewellyn, Waldo, and Mrs. Maria Redding, of Agosta.

RELIGION, BUSINESS

The International Sunday School Lesson for September 4 is "From Philippi to Athens."—Acts 16:10-17:15

BY WILLIAM T. ELLIS.

Lloyd George, the British premier, recently stirred up a hornet's nest by advising the preachers for meddlesome public affairs. They should be advised, "stick to the simple Gospel," and leave political and industrial questions to public men. The prime minister was doubtless speedily sorry that he ever so spoke, for from every quarter of British press and pulpit came straight, strong words, reminding him of his own past utterances to the contrary; and of the Christian church's plain duty to call office-holders to account when they depart from the standard of Christian integrity in national affairs; and of the simple truth that the Gospel is concerned with all of life, so that wherever wrong is done, there should be heard the swift, clear, condemnatory word of the preacher, crying "Thus saith the Lord."

This episode has a contemporary parallel in the United States, as well as in the New Testament story which is this week's Sunday-school lesson. Following the precedent of the business men who threatened to withdraw their support from the Young Women's Christian association because it adopted a social service platform, committing the organization to a program of political, industrial and social righteousness, a group of Pittsburgh leaders criticized the ministers of the city for likewise "meddling" with matters outside of their sphere. The ringing reply of the clergy sounded like a page from the Old Testament prophets or from the Apostle Paul. It is manifest that the Christian pulpit of Pittsburgh may not be dictated to by business.

In like manner, when representatives of large financial interests, attempted to rebuke the Federal Council of Churches for its actions and utterances upon the theme of industrial relations, the leading pulpits of New York cried out in fearless tones of independence. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick's sermon with his blaring assertion that the pulpit of America is "Not for sale, gentlemen. Not for sale," is having a quick, wide circulation.

This entire group of recent experiences, on both sides of the Atlantic, is one of the significant developments of our day. It is acting as a tonic upon weak-kneed and wobbling Christians everywhere. A new declaration of independence for the ministry of the Gospel is being written. The pulpit's championship of the wronged in every sphere of life is being vindicated. The dauntless proclamation of righteousness as the one and only standard for all classes and callings of mankind is seen as the present duty of every person who teaches in the name of Christ. Should there be a proportion of timid, truckling, time-serving ministers in the sacred calling, they will find themselves carried forward to the advanced position of the entire church militant. The threadbare sneer that the church fawns upon the rich and defends property rights above human rights is being disproved by current events. The present lesson is pertinent.

A Great "News Story"

History's "star reporter" is Dr. Luke, who was special correspondent attached to the staff of Major General Paul, who led the victorious Christian invasion of Europe. Every line that Luke wrote throbs with life. He had the "news sense" for "human interest." His narrative of the first events following the crossing over from Asia is a "story" passing the power of modern journalists. In a wonderful tale of compression, he portrays, in living colors, a business woman's conversion and hospitality, a fakir's undoing, a ferocious attack of "vested interests" upon the preachers of truth; an incident of shrewd incitement to mob passion and action, with consequent miscarriage of justice; a midnight scene in an oriental dungeon; a dramatic interposition of divine justice; a Roman official living up to his code, the magnanimity of his persecuted hero; the quick conversion of the calloused keeper of the peace, and his gracious hospitality and social service; the marvellous assertion of citizenship rights by the two preacher-prisoners, the confusion of the cowardly politicians and the triumph of the undaunted missionaries. For sheer interest, from a journalistic standpoint, this Philippian experience of Paul, which the Sunday-schools are studying, is unsurpassed.

Only those persons who read the Bible as an unaltered book, without respect to time, place, personalities or sequence, can fail to catch the dramatic quality of these first events in the history of Christianity in Europe. The third great experience in Paul's experience is told here. First came his conversion from Judaism to Christianity, then the momentous decision that the Gospel was for the Gentile as well as for the Jew; and now the proof that it belonged to Europe as well as to Asia. We may easily imagine the enthusiasm of Paul's party, as they gathered about their leader in conference at the close of the day, in the home of that successful business woman, Lydia of Thyatira—Christianity's first convert in Europe. Their vision and faith were being vindicated. The first fruits of victory in Philippi were the same as the Gospel had borne in the cities of Syria and Cilicia and Asia Minor.

This is the time to forge a link between the region of Thrace and the Apostle Paul. We are reading occasionally the cablegrams and reviews of "the Thracian question," and of the rival claims of Greeks, Bulgarians, Macedonians and Turks to Thrace. To "experts" enlightened as on this question, they write learnedly of Alexander the Great, and of his father, Philip of Macedonia—after whom the city of Philippi was named—but it is to be remembered that the most important fact about this territory is that it was here that Christianity made its advent into Europe.

The people of Philippi—to whom the Epistle to the Philippians were later written—were the first to give Europe's welcome to the Good News of the world's Savior. We should read of Paul's joy and pride in this first church of Europe, as ardently written in his letters, in the light of the strategic character of the city's place in Christian chronology. The church and Greekness.

That there is nothing new under the sun is well illustrated by this lesson. The devious ways of business in dealing with the law are no modern evil. The third incident of Paul's experience in Philippi strikingly shows this. First, he had met, on the Sabbath, at the Jewish praying place by the river-side, a Jewish proselyte named Lydia, who became converted, and with her family, was baptized opening her home to the missionary party. Second in order was the encounter with the soothing saying dame, who recognized Paul's mission—for "the devil also believes and tremble." Paul, indignant at the plaguing of the sorceress, exercised the evil spirit from the damsel.

Thereby he ran afoul of "vested interests." For he wrecked the business of the girl's masters. Just as the casting out of the money changers from the temple was a decisive factor in arousing the rabble against Jesus, so this reform in a poor young woman's character brought the mob baying at Paul's heels. Touch the pocket nerve and you get a quick reaction. It is liquor business, and not the thirty public that is agitating against prohibition. Motion-picture money is in the field against censorship. The real force behind the campaign for a wide-open Sunday is the commercial interests that would profit thereby. The lobbies that infest the outer courts of legislative halls, and the hidden influences that divert the stream of common welfare, are usually sordid and mercenary. Money is more sensitive than conscience.

Inevitably and universally, a clear presentation of truth cuts athwart the interests of bad business. Do not carefully noted, however, that Christianity has no quarrel with business as such, or because it is "big"; Christ's teachings condemn only bad business and condemn it whether conducted by a deacon running a crooked corner grocery store or by a corporation operating on a world-wide scale. By its very nature, the Gospel is a declaration of war against unrighteousness. Wherever it ceases so to be militant, it loses its true character. Thus the church in Russia that supported and served the corrupt autocracy had if itself become corrupt. Any congregation that complacently regards iniquity in its membership or in its community has reason to question whether it is not apostate to Christ.

Why the Flag Was Hung.

Paul's courageous word wrecked the business of the fakirs who were using a poor demented young woman for money-making purposes. So they set out hot foot to "get" him. Of course, they could not address the magistrates with the blunt statement, "This preacher is bad for business"; they dissembled and camouflaged their real reason under a cloak of civic virtue and conservation and patriotic zeal. Their solicitude for Rome's honor recalls the story of the speaker before a public school, who, pointing to a national flag on the wall, asked, "Children, can you tell me why that flag hangs on the wall?"

"Please, sir," replied a frank and guileless boy, "it is to cover a dirty spot." That use of patriotism neither began nor ended at Philippi. With fair words and a fine simulation of public zeal, these crafters stirred up the mob against the Christian missionaries, so that in a frenzy of popular tumult, which swept the politicians on the bench away from all judicial caution, giving the defendants no fair chance to explain themselves, Paul and Silas were beaten with the Roman rods, put in stocks and thrust into an inner dungeon. Two years ago I was the happy instrument of rescuing from a foul Salonic prison an American missionary, who had been quite as unwarrantably incarcerated as his famous predecessors. It is worth while to pause and recall the injustices that even yet are sometimes perpetrated under the cloak of legal authority.

How To Meet Trouble.

These present days of distress, with millions of workers unemployed, and with uncounted business men suffering financial shipwreck, are an especially appropriate time to consider how misfortune may be met. The question of how a man should act when he is down is of deepest interest. Shall he grow embittered and seek for victims of vengeance? Shall he curse fate and the existing order of things? Shall he brood in soul-scarring melancholy? Look at Paul and Silas: their sensitive souls were hurt; a sense of injustice rankled; their backs were bleeding, and arrows of pain were shooting through their bodies; their feet "in the wood," their crowded neighbors in a foul prison cell the various victims of the law—surely, if ever man had a right to rail out in protest against fate they were the ones.

Yet they sang instead! At midnight, above the groans and murmurings and curses of their cell mates, rose the sweet strains of the Hebrew Psalms, breathing untrodden confidence in Jehovah. There was a faith that gave them "songs in the night." They were down, but not out. Their backs were bloody, but their spirits were unbowed. The way in which a Christian bears trouble is a sure apologetic of his creed. The missionaries were not men with a grievance, they were soldiers on service, displaying their qualities in reverses as well as in victories.

Last spring I saw a regatta, in which the Harvard crew came in a bad fifth, yet they rowed to the finish in the form of winners so that the splendid manner in which they lost was as noteworthy as the way in which a rival won.

As in all of life, it is the spiritual attitude that determines triumph or defeat. Paul and Silas singing in their cell, were the real victors in this Philippian incident.

The Earthquake's Sermon. They met force with faith, fighting always with their own weapons. And, lo! their faith had the victory. God, who has uncounted reserves for the succor of the saints, sent an earthquake that freed the prisoners. The unused power that Jehovah has in store is only occasionally revealed or even hinted at, as when Jesus alluded to the twelve legions of angels. All the unmeasured resources of heaven are at the service of the needy children of God. That is the sermon the earthquake preaches to us.

A few days ago a group of Spanish officers, surrounded by hostile tribesmen in Morocco, committed suicide rather than surrender. Theirs was the old Roman code. When the Roman jailer at Philippi found the prison opened by the earthquake, and the prisoners presumptuously freed, he drew his sword to take his own life. That was a consummation for which many of the prisoners devoutly wished. Not so Paul: that magnanimous missionary, his thought of others over taking precedence of his own needs, saved the jailer from suicide.

In a few minutes the officer had grasped the core of the situation and he saw the religious meaning of the marvel. Critics may call the earthquake a mere coincidence, but the Roman knew that there was no accident or common occurrence; he perceived its spiritual significance, and, what is yet better, its application to himself. So he fell down before the two Christian convicts, whose fame had filled the town, crying, "Sirs"—note the respectful "Sirs" from the haughty official—"What must I do to be saved?"

From his convicts, the jailer got a creed that saved him and will save the world. In the confusion and panic of the night, amid the prison shattered by an earthquake, there was delivered a word that sums up the whole Gospel—"Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved, and thy house." Luther called John 3:16 "The Little Gospel," here we have a still greater condensation of the essence of the whole New Testament. This is theology enough to save the world. Life follows faith. No "social creed," or merely ethical teaching can supplant this. Faith first, then all else follows. After his great acceptance, the jailer turned: in consequence, to social service, showing hospitality, and binding up the wounds of the prisoners, and providing them with food and refreshment. The greatest force that ever enters a human life is this saying "I will" to the command: "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ."

THE HUB OF COMMERCE.

Daily Proverb—"For an honest man half his wife are enough; the whole is too little for a knave."

It's a pretty safe proposition that home brew will give the doctors a lot more business than would medicinal beer.

It is now known that a practical joke was responsible for the "pirate ship" story. Well, to be candid about the matter, the think did make a noise like a joke.

The treasury announces that it is issuing cleaner money, but a lot of people will not insist on the sanitary feature, just so they get it.

The chief reason why the world is building hopes on the coming conference for the limitation of armaments is that it realizes that if armaments aren't limited the entire world will have to go into bankruptcy.

The more one studies the airship, the greater is the inclination to feel that the champions of the battleship know about what they are talking.

Despite all that has been said on the subject, there wasn't any lack of heartiness or appreciation in Japan's acceptance of the invitation to join in the limitation of armaments conference to open Armistice day.

Some of the good women who have been trying to regulate Congresswoman Robertson have discovered that she's a mighty good proposition to leave alone.

According to a scientist, the ancients didn't live so long as we do today. Without going into the merits of the proposition, we are willing to wager that they didn't live so much.

The public may not realize it, but just the same there is something of a movement back to the farm. High rents and comparative scarcity of homes is accomplishing that which all suggested methods and oceans of propaganda have failed to bring to pass.

A DUTY HERE AT HOME.

While as a nation we believe it a duty to give aid to backward peoples, giving a government to the Philippines and sending missionaries to all parts of the earth, we have disadvantaged peoples right at home. Among them are the inhabitants of the Blue Ridge and Cumberland ranges of mountains in Kentucky and Tennessee. The condition of these people, of the purest blood in America, has excited sympathy and much has been done to lift them out of their century-old environment, but much remains to be done.

President Hutchins of Berea college, an institution that has carried much light to the mountains, says there are 3,000,000 of these backward people on the slopes and in the valleys of the southern highlands. The ancestors of these people went into the mountains through poverty or exploitation and the hills have held them ever since at about the same level. There are no roads worthy of the name, the soil is not capable of producing enough to give proper support to a family and markets can not be reached. The result is poor people, poor schools, poor churches. However, many of the industries of other days survive there. Spinning and weaving are carried on generally and the thought and habits are those of the long ago. By many of these people a religious nature moonshining is thought to be an honorable occupation. The fact that moonshine brings $16 to $20 a quart and is the main means of commanding money doubtless contributes to the belief in its desirability.

This situation is of concern not alone to the states that claim these people as citizens. It is a problem for the whole country. People who do not progress go backward. They are of good stock, but have succumbed to environment and it is among such that blood feud exist, though possibly they do not prevail with the intensity of other days. An infection of one member is of influence on the whole body. It might be well for us to give a bit less attention to the backward people on the far side of the earth and take a little more interest in lifting out of the condition of the hills some of our own people who need help to reach the average of American enlightenment.

SEEMS HE IS MAKING SOME RESERVATIONS

"LET THE BUYER BEWARE."

Secretary of Commerce Hoover is said to be giving some attention to the offering of foreign municipal securities to investors in this country, with the view to obtaining evidence of violation of "blue sky" laws. He is quoted as saying that American investors should "exercise the utmost care in their selection of foreign securities." This advice applies to all kinds of investments, foreign and domestic, recent proof of which is being furnished by the investigation into the operations of a band of alleged swindlers, with headquarters in Chicago. The axiom—"let the buyer beware"—should not be ignored in the purchase of securities as well as of real estate or commodities.

The only attraction of foreign municipal securities for the average American investor is the high rate of interest at which they are offered. Realization of this rate is dependent upon two factors, concerning which even experts in international finance find it difficult to form a sound judgment. One is the market value of foreign exchange at the time payment is made of principal and interest, and the other is the ability of the European municipality to meet its obligations at maturity. This ability, in turn, is dependent upon political developments, which in the existing chaotic state of affairs abroad, can not be safely forecast. It is probable, however, that nine-tenths of the ventures in foreign bonds, like the purchases of German marks and Russian rubles during and since the war, are of a purely speculative nature, instead of an investment undertaking.

Invariably the rate of yield on a stock or bond is a measure of the safety of principal of the investment. If the yield on market value runs as high as ten per cent, or more it signifies uncertainty concerning interest or principal, or both. The exception occurs in times of great financial stress, when the owner of a perfectly good stock or bond is compelled through necessity to sacrifice it to obtain ready cash. People who buy foreign securities on a basis to net a much higher return than that available in the market for American securities are taking a big chance, and knowing this it is not clear that they should become wards of the government in the financial undertakings.

That Detroit judge who has decided that liquor may be shipped through the United States to a foreign destination may know the law, but he doesn't know human nature. The day of miracles is past.

"Any entertainment that tends to lower the standard of human ideals," says the Youngstown Telegram, "should be consigned to the scrap heap. That's a simple rule for censorship." "Absolutely!" But it would work an awful hardship on the box office.

"The oyster will come in officially tomorrow," observed the restaurant philosopher at luncheon today, "but before I get chummy with him I want to know if he has heard the news that we are making an effort to get back to normal in the matter of prices."

FOCH'S VISIT.

(New York Herald)

Marshal Foch has chosen a good season for his visit to the United States. October is usually our best month, very like in climate this accidentally magnificent August. In October the whole country has something to show the visitor. The farms are picturesque with the final harvests, the forest-splendored in their changing colors, the cities full of zest that follows summer.

The Marshal may be sure of a warm reception. It is a long time since Armistice day and most of the heroes of the war are being gently forgotten. Yet nobody forgets the Generalissimo. He is neither a machine-like military man nor a talkative statesman, but a fine being whose thorough understanding of the virtues and faults of his fellow creatures, added to a profound knowledge of the art of war and the value of patience, resulted in the allied victory.

The Marshal doubtless has a great curiosity to see the land whence came the stream of eager doughboys. And America wants to see the schoolmaster who taught the last lessons of the war.

LIFE'S VAUDEVILLE.

(By Dr. James Hall Naylor.)

KNOWING AND DOING.

There's a big difference between knowing and doing. Longfellow wrote:

"Lives of great men all remind us
 We can make our lives sublime,
 And, departing, leave behind us
 Footprints on the sands of time."

With all due respect to the memory of Longfellow and his philosophy of life, I want to say that the footprints of dead men aren't half as important to the world as the sweat-glime of living men.

Get me?

No!

Well, I'll try and make my meaning clear.

Douglas Fairbanks is a movie actor. He isn't a seer. He isn't a philosopher, but, seemingly, he has his share of common sense. In an article in a recent number of Collier's, "One Reel of Autobiography," the smiling film favorite has this to say:

"If I were permitted the privilege of advising the world how to live and achieve, I know what I would say. I would suggest that we all stop listening to advice and paying attention to rules. We are all soaked and groggy with advice. We are so full of information on how to do things that we are inclined to overlook the fact that the principle thing is to do them."

Well, I must admit, of course, that if people should cease to give advice and should refuse to receive advice—then Douglas's suggestion would be ignored, and I wouldn't be writing this article.

However, I think the well-known movie star right in the opinion he expresses.

"A man of words, and not of deeds,
 Is like a garden full of weeds."
 A man of neither words nor deeds—
 He doesn't help the world's needs.

What the world needs isn't so much what we think we know, or say we know—as what we know.

And it isn't so much what we know—as what we can do.

Food is wasted on an adult, able-bodied human being, if the physical energy it creates isn't utilized usefully.

Education is wasted on the individual, if the mental power gained isn't put to work.

Culture is wasted when it accomplishes nothing.

What's the use of knowing the rules of baseball, if one never plays the game—never witnesses the game and cheers the players? What's the use of knowing the secrets of successful agriculture, if one never cultivates a garden, even?

What's the use of knowing the contents of good books, if one makes no use of the knowledge gained? What's the use of receiving advice and listening to counsel, if one ignores both?

Some persons go through life, absorbing—absorbing—and giving forth nothing. A jelly-fish can do that.

And the jelly-fish rots at last; and so do the human absorbers.

Another thing worrying the country during the heated season is whether concrete means to place methylenephosphoric acid and tetramethylenephosphoric acid on the free list.—Indianapolis News.

On the free list? I should say not! Such foreigners should be caged.

Fred H. Hart, a California, Missouri, merchant, and Miss and Mrs. C. E. Reynolds, were married, Rev. Campbell of the Presbyterian church officiating.—Republic, Missouri, Monitor.

That bigamist should be sent to the penitentiary for life. He has Hart two women at once.

The Farrar-Telleken mess is merely another reflection of the present industrial situation. The same thing is going on in a thousand plants. First, Telleken went out on a strike. When he returned, he found Farrar had locked him out.—Kansas City Star.

She told him to go to Telleken, how?

As the reds in Russia go out in the gray of defeat, the parlor pink in this country seem to be suffused with even a redder glow.—Chicago News.

But these pinks at last will grow so weak there'll be nothing left but the yellow streak.

For Nerves of Steel

And the Physical Vigor that Compels Success in Business and Amusement / Scientifically Combined

Medical science is agreed that all that is necessary to give the nerves of steel and the physical vigor that compels success in business and amusement is the combination of a natural appetite and the proper food. That's What Akron Man Thinks of the Benefits His Wife Has Received by Taking It.

"My wife is a mighty strong believer in Tanlac and, in fact, the medicine is a household treasure with us," said H. H. Atkinson, a valued employee of The Goodyear Rubber and Tire Co. living at 935 Chalkier St., Akron, Ohio.

"For two years her stomach was badly out of order. After eating she complained of sharp pains, palpitation and shortness of breath and often became sick at the stomach. Her nerves were all upset and she never got any sound sleep at night. Medicine seemed to do her no good whatever and she got terribly weak and run down."

"But Tanlac began helping her almost from the first few doses and now it has set her right in every respect. She is sound and well, sleeps fine every night, never has a touch of indigestion and says she feels splendid. She keeps a bottle of Tanlac in the house all the time and wouldn't be without it under any consideration. It has certainly done a lot for a world of good."

Tanlac is sold in Marion by The Dumble Pharmacy, and by leading druggists everywhere.—Adv

VEIOCK ON SPORTS

New York, Aug. 31.—Pittsburgh's plucky Pirates returned from the East, today, a somewhat battered but far from beaten ball club.

Winding up their last eastern and only disastrous road trip of the season in Brooklyn with a victory, the Buccos trekked back to Smoketown with an untimely fine lead of 7 1-2 games reduced to 1 1-2 by the Giants and Dodgers, but determined to fight to the last ditch for the pennant.

George Gibson, the usually tactful pilot of the Buccoers, expressed the sentiment of his players briefly but forcefully. Just before boarding a train for the West.

"We've certainly found the going rough during the last few days," he said, "but we have no alibis to offer."

"Five straight defeats by New York was a hard blow. The Giants simply played better ball than we did, however and our hats are off to them."

"We're going back home to fight it out to a finish. Two-thirds of our remaining games will be played at Forbes field. That's something of an advantage."

Gibson is confident that his team has the strength and balance to continue the pace it has been traveling. "All of our players are in good shape," he continued. "I haven't a kick on that score. Our pitchers, especially the young fellows, are going fine and I'm not worrying over the possibility of the staff cracking."

Of course, a good many things can happen in a month's time, but as we've gone this far on "high," I don't see why we can't stick it out."

Elated over their recent triumph, the Giants today prepared for the hardest assignments they have tackled this summer—a western road trip with pennant at stake.

The Giants invaded Pittsburgh September 16, for the last clash with the Pirates and if the race continues as close as it is now, this series probably will decide the pennant.

BASEBALL GOSSIP.

Tagging the Lines.

Home runs by Smith and Baneroff helped the Giants beat the Cubs.

The Pirates mopped up the Dodgers when Glazner kept seven hits widely scattered.

Homers by Boeckel and Powell enabled the Braves to break their losing streak in the first game of a twin bill with the Reds. Cincinnati took the second game by timely hitting.

The Braves pulled off a triple play in the second game. Ford to Boeckel to Nicholson to O'Neil.

Four singles and a triple by George Sisler helped considerably in the victory of the Browns at Chicago.

The Phillies and Cardinals divided a double-header. Doak lost the first game, but Dixie Walker capped the afterpiece for St. Louis.

Carl Mays' underhanded methods against the Senators resulted in a Yankee victory. Babe Ruth turned an ankle and had to retire in the fifth.

So then I didn't like my breakfast any more, and when me and Jubilee was going to skin out my mother told me to take some fishes over to Younis's mother, so I took three blue pike and a sand pike and a perch.

WEST OHIO CONFERENCE SERMON TEXT IS FAITH

Rev. Hough Houston Delivers
Annual Message.

CONFERENCE PROPER
IS OPENED TODAY

Young Men Rallying to Ministry.
Largest Class in History Up for Examination.

Belmont, O., Aug. 31.—[Special.]—The annual conference of the West Ohio M. E. conference was preached by the Rev. Hough Houston at the Methodist church, last evening. Rev. Houston is pastor of the Central church, Springfield, and his address was the message that "we walk in faith and not by sight." His words were deeply impressed by words and masterful delivery. An appointment to deliver the conference sermon was made by Bishop Luther Wilson of New York.

Basing his sermon on the Apostle Paul's second letter to the Corinthians, "For we walk in faith and not by sight," the speaker said in part:

There are overflowing statements of the Apostle Paul which do not belong to the letter he is writing. He has such great love for his people he has difficulty in keeping himself to the subject on which he is writing. He grasps strange thoughts in the seventh verse of the fifth chapter, in the second letter to the church of Corinth, he writes, "For we walk in faith and not by sight." In his first letters he tells that the three abiding things are faith, hope and love.

Virtually's Impulse.

According to this great teacher faith has in it the impulse of immortality. What is heaven but the coming up to the life of God? There are two classes of unseen things. Those yet to come to pass and the hidden things around us. The prophet looks into the future and sees the things that are to come. When we take our place by the side of God we shall have our vision. Jesus Christ looks behind the broken world and sees humanity in its completed glory. These things are to be known by faith alone.

"We are all at times restless to get beyond that which shuts us in on every side. We have dreams and visions and usually the inspiration is fulfilled some time. Why? Because the man who makes the prophecy has a feeling that his reputation rests on the fulfillment of that prophecy and so puts his life in its fulfillment."

"We can not keep man at home. We can not subdue his spirit. Shut in the world by time—but in a de-caying body—yet he thinks about God and when God unbars the gates to heaven he will find himself no stranger there. Our loved ones are gone and call us onward. Heaven is not far off."

"Christ has given us in the Cross of Jesus Christ an exhibition of what He is and what He has been. How do I know there is an unseen part?—because what I see is incomplete. The unfinished in material, moral, intellectual and spiritual is the working margin for human life."

Seeing by Faith.

"Do we not see by faith? It is the telescope which sweeps the heavens bringing nearer the stars which we can see. It is the microscope which searches things near at hand and sees the beauties which we have not seen before. We may let our faith draw the fairest pictures, yet hear-ers will be far better. Yet we shall not be strangers there. We shall know each other far better when the mists have cleared."

"God is speaking constantly and everywhere. If we do not hear His voice it is because we have reached the place where we can interpret. Going upon the greatness of one who has redeemed us we feel the greatness of His life dawning on our life, and we shall be satisfied when we feel ourselves waking in His own life. We walk by faith and not by sight."

Largest Student Class.

An increase in the enthusiasm of young men for the gospel ministry was indicated Tuesday when the largest class of students ever up for examination in the West Ohio conference took out papers from Albert H. Weaver, pastor of the Hyde Park church, Cincinnati, who is the registrar of the board of exorcists.

Reports brought to the conference were from Methodist seminaries indicated the same growing interest among young men to become preachers.

Indications point to the reapportionment of Dr. W. H. Wehrly as district superintendent for the Cincinnati district. It is believed that all of the district superintendents will be re-elected by Bishop Wilson, who is presiding at the conference sessions.

Secretary of Cabinet.

Dr. Wehrly is secretary of Bishop Wilson's cabinet during the conference. One appointment agreed upon was the selection of Dr. C. N. Van Pelt to succeed himself as minister of the Cincinnati Home for the Aged. Dr. Van Pelt had expected to enter the active ministry, but he was induced to remain in his present position with an increase in salary.

The entrance list of students taking the conference examination is as follows:

HEAVENS IN SEPTEMBER

Figure 1. Constellation at 9 p. m. September 1. Hold the map so that the direction faced is at the bottom—that is, if facing east hold east at the bottom, as south now is.

The bright planets Jupiter and Saturn which have been objects of interest in the evening sky for many months are now too close to the sun to be seen. The sun passes Saturn September 21 and Jupiter the next day. These planets will then be morning stars for about six months. On September 14 Jupiter passes Saturn, or is in conjunction with it as astronomers call it. This conjunction has been ascribed as the cause of the unusually high temperatures prevailing this year. I have seen no good reason for accepting this as a cause. Such a conjunction occurs at intervals of about twenty years. There are no periods in temperature changes of this length. For unknown reasons the temperatures of different years vary to a considerable extent with a tendency toward cycles. The period which seems to be most marked is one of thirty-five years. The range, however, is not great. No reason for this period is known. As temperature changes on the earth as a whole are primarily due to changes on the sun there have been many attempts to find the reasons for the changes in the sun's condition. In particular attempts have been made to connect temperature changes with sunspots. The temperatures are slightly higher at sunspot minimum and it is now the time of sunspot minimum. As the period of the sun-spots is nearly the same as the period of Jupiter's revolution about the sun, attempts have been made to associate the two. Saturn also and other planets have been suspected of having an influence. The subject is still under investigation.

None of the brighter planets are now visible in the early evening. Uranus is in Aquarius, but not visible to the naked eye. Venus is brilliant as a morning star. On September 12 it makes a close approach to the planet Neptune. At 7 o'clock in the morning of that day the two planets are closest, five minutes apart. As Neptune is always invisible to the naked eye a telescope is necessary to see this planet.

The Equinox.

On September 23, 9:20 a. m. eastern standard time, the sun crosses the equator going southward and autumn commences. This time is called the autumnal equinox because the day and night are of equal length. Strictly speaking, however, this is not true. On this day the sun rises at 5:49 a. m. and sets at 5:56 p. m. The day is thus 16 minutes longer than the night. This lengthening of the day at the expense of the night comes from the fact that the sun is counted as rising when its upper edge first appears above the horizon and considered as setting when its upper edge disappears. The refraction due to Earth's atmosphere raises the sun a distance about equal to its diameter, so that we see it rise about two and a half minutes sooner than he otherwise should and set later by the same amount. The fact that we use the edge of the sun instead of the center makes another minute difference in the times of rising and setting. In high latitudes these differences are greater. It will be noted that the sun does not rise and set at 6 o'clock even disregarding these effects. This arises from the fact that our time is based upon the mean sun, which is at this time sixty degrees spots is nearly the same as the period of Jupiter's revolution about the sun, attempts have been made to associate the two. Saturn also and other planets have been suspected of having an influence. The subject is still under investigation.

None of the brighter planets are now visible in the early evening. Uranus is in Aquarius, but not visible to the naked eye. Venus is brilliant as a morning star. On September 12 it makes a close approach to the planet Neptune. At 7 o'clock in the morning of that day the two planets are closest, five minutes apart. As Neptune is always invisible to the naked eye a telescope is necessary to see this planet.

The Equinox.

On September 23, 9:20 a. m. eastern standard time, the sun crosses the equator going southward and autumn commences. This time is called the autumnal equinox because the day and night are of equal length. Strictly speaking, however, this is not true. On this day the sun rises at 5:49 a. m. and sets at 5:56 p. m. The day is thus 16 minutes longer than the night. This lengthening of the day at the expense of the night comes from the fact that the sun is counted as rising when its upper edge first appears above the horizon and considered as setting when its upper edge disappears. The refraction due to Earth's atmosphere raises the sun a distance about equal to its diameter, so that we see it rise about two and a half minutes sooner than he otherwise should and set later by the same amount. The fact that we use the edge of the sun instead of the center makes another minute difference in the times of rising and setting. In high latitudes these differences are greater. It will be noted that the sun does not rise and set at 6 o'clock even disregarding these effects. This arises from the fact that our time is based upon the mean sun, which is at this time sixty degrees clock April 9. The days increased nearly two hours in length in this brief interval of twenty days. When the days are short the daylight would all be used as here in winter. When the days are long there is more daylight than can be used so that conservation is not necessary. Farther north there is still less need of the daylight saving plan. At the pole itself where it is about equally light or dark throughout the twenty-four hours it matters little when one sleeps.

If the hours from 8 p. m. to 4 a. m. were devoted to sleep the daylight would be reserved every where. There is however a human disinclination to rising before the sun. "Early to bed and early to rise" is a good rule—for the other fellow. Hence we have adopted habits suited to winter rather than the whole year, and the habit once formed of doing things at definite hours we object to change. If the sun is shining we don't object to rising earlier in itself but at or rising at 7 we hate the thought of rising at 6. If we call it 7 we are misled provided the hours of duty are also set forward, for it would be difficult to rise before our duties compelled us to. The whole reason for daylight saving time is thus a psychological one.

Teachers Are Told Elements of Life.

Objective, Subjective and Idealization, Mr. Light Says.

J. W. Zeller Conducts Devotional Exercises.

Former State School Head Will Deliver Lecture at Institute This Afternoon.

J. W. Zeller, of Bowling Green, former state school superintendent, conducted the devotional exercises at this evening's session of the Marion County Teachers' Institute, reading a part of the tenth chapter of Luke. The music was in charge of C. E. Green.

L. Light of Harborton, delivered the only lecture of the morning session taking for his subject "An Inventory."

"Objective, subjective and idealization," Mr. Light declared, "were the elements of life. The first element of human experience is outside. We are not human because we have the objective and the subjective," he said. "We have instincts just the same as animals and I am quite sure animals reason. However we are not human because we reason," Mr. Light declared.

"In the objective realm we have all the elements of science," the speaker continued. "We are studying everything out here in the physical world, history, chemistry, astronomy and other studies."

"Things We Like to Do."

"In the subject realm we find our psychology, sociology," he stated, "but the real element in life was found in our idealization, in doing the things we like to do."

"Religion, ethics and aesthetics are found in the realm of idealization," the speaker said. "This power of doing the things we like to do and doing it in the way we like to do it is the tap-root of our being, our temperament, optimism or pessimism," Mr. Light declared.

Mr. Light said that life is a series of proposals of the things we expect to do, what we are going to be and we are continually drawing on the future with our plans.

"You can tell something of the character of a person by knowing something of his ideals," the speaker continued. "It takes great strength to bring your life up square and hold it to your accepted thought," Mr. Light said.

Personality and Idealism.

"They say personality is a difficult thing to define. The growing point of personality is idealism," he continued. "The first requisite for a growing personality is a desire to improve your school, your life, the thing that you do."

Mr. Light said it should be the purpose of every teacher to give the pupils ideals. He referred to the great characters of life and said that we get our ideals from the great examples and characters of literature.

Following Mr. Light's address departmental meetings were held. Round table discussions for the high school were held under the supervision of Sylvester Larkin, of the city high school faculty. Elementary grades had to eight, Hindee C. Gross, county normal school instructor, county school superintendent. Miss DeEmma Hawley, city teacher, gave a class demonstration in class room work in the first to fourth grade work.

J. W. Zeller and Mr. Light will address the afternoon session of the institute.

Tuesday Afternoon.

Tuesday afternoon's session opened with a demonstration of work that can be accomplished in music by boys and girls, conducted by C. E. Green, assisted by a group of pupils from the Caledonia public schools. J. G. Colliard was the first speaker of the afternoon and delivered an address on "The Teacher."

A constructive plan was given to the teachers for overcoming the difficulty of starting the routine work of the much-degraded first day of school. Ten habits of efficiency and the art of mobilizing all the pupils under her care were said to be best portrayed in the work of the elementary teacher, by virtue of the necessity and his method of securing interest and attention was cited as being suitable for college and high school work.

Friendliness and Understanding.

James Whitcomb Riley was said to be an advocate during his entire life, of friendliness and understanding toward teachers in general, and several selections by the Hoosier poet were read by Mr. Collicott. The inspiration for many of Riley's poems was shown to revert back to the ideals instilled into the boy's mind and heart by his school teachers of early childhood days.

After an intermission C. E. Green conducted a short session of songs. L. Light gave a talk on "Spelling." Correlating the first part of his address with the talk of the morning, Mr. Light said how the significance of a man's work depends upon his vocation and its relation to society. He lamented the fact that some parents wish to educate their children with the idea of erasing work in the future.

Spaulding's Boston.

London, Aug. 31.—A detachment of Moorish troops surprised a Spanish position at Tefar, 40 kilometers from Alkassar, Bekir, Morocco, and captured the Spanish advanced posts after sharp fighting.

Millionaire Kid Recaptured.

Philadelphia, Aug. 31.—Charles Hoffman, 15, known to the police as the "Millionaire Kid" because of his extravagant living following theft of large sums of money from various employers, was arrested by state police on the term of his grandparents at Easttown, Pa. He escaped from a reformatory in Delaware county, Pa. last Saturday.

Treaty With Hungary Signed.

London, Aug. 31.—The peace treaty between Hungary and the United States was signed at Budapest, according to telegrams reaching here. It was signed by Grant Smith, American commissioner, and Benffy, Hungarian foreign minister.

"We must build up some sort of social ethics in relation to mental occupation," said Mr. Light, quoting Mr. Jones, former mayor of Toledo, who said "we could get along without preachers, teachers and doctors. If we had to, but that we couldn't get along without the garbage man." Mr. Light advocated pulling more respect into the mental tasks of the work to be done no matter what that work might be.

By Practical Test.

"By practical tests it has been proven that despite the same given to the old time spelling matches the power of correct spelling today, exceeds that of the past," he said. "We use the word 'the' once in every sixteen times, and the words 'and,' 'of,' and 'to,' once in every thirty times, and these words comprise one sixth of our written discourse," said Mr. Light.

A list of practical words was given to the teachers as a written test, by the speaker. To get the words that the boys and girls use and to combine the sight of the word with the analytical copy of it, was said to be the method of getting the content of spelling on a working basis. Mr. Light said that three or four new words were sufficient for any primary school in one lesson and four or five were sufficient for any upper grade school in one lesson.

The use of the dictionary in the school and the value of review were explained by Mr. Light and in closing, he spoke strongly against the old time system of column spelling that of repeating a long dull list of mere words to the pupil and advocated in its stead a more practical content method.

BUCKEYE BIRDS

Couple Killed.

Cleveland, Aug. 31.—Death halted a honeymoon trip of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin C. Simpson abruptly when their automobile was demolished by an interurban car near Chilpewa Lake. Both were killed. The young people were married Aug. 2 at Steubenville.

Thompson, aged attendant at a local gasoline filling station, who was shot to death Aug. 5. Siebert, an Ohio university student, who was at the scene of the crime, picked Harris from a group of a dozen men.

Charlton Succeeds Kramer.

Columbus, Aug. 31.—A long period of dissension among officers of the penitentiary culminated in the removal of Dr. O. M. Kramer, prison physician by Warden P. E. Thomas. Thomas' written charge against Kramer, embodied in the latter's notice of removal, was that he, Kramer, was intoxicated last Sunday night when it was his duty to have officiated at the electrocution of Frank Motin, Cleveland murderer. Dr. Kramer denies the charge. Paul H. Charlton was appointed physician to succeed Kramer.

Idle House Condemned.

Cleveland, Aug. 31.—Abolition of the "idle house" and the finding of work for convicts will be recommended to Governor Davis in the report of the state senate committee which has been investigating conditions in the Ohio penitentiary. The committee comprises Senators Culbert of Fremont, Norwood of Canton and Reynolds of Cleveland. The committee agreed that the main trouble at the state penitentiary was due to the large number of prisoners in the "idle house" because of lack of work.

Davis Names Secretary.

Columbus, Aug. 31.—Governor Davis appointed Robert T. Harris of this city, secretary of the state tax commission, as his secretary, succeeding Lloyd E. Waite, now state finance director. Bundy of Athens, now commission clerk, to become executive clerk in the governor's office, succeeding Rogers.

The committee in charge of the celebration has extended an invitation to all residents of the county to join with them at Lincoln park and many of the union organizations of surrounding towns will be here.

The street parade will start in the morning at 8 o'clock from the corner of Center street and Park boulevard, marching east on Center street to Prospect street, then south to Church street and east on Church street to Main street and north on Main street to the park. Awards for the best float and for the largest delegation in the parade will be made.

Program at Park.

An extensive program will be carried out at the park. In addition to the band concerts there will be speaking in the morning and afternoon. Benjamin I. In the afternoon the principal speaker will be T. R. Dodge, assistant to the president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen. There will also be a ball game in the afternoon between the Folsomia and Marion teams. Swimming, dancing, and minor sports will be enjoyed.

In the evening, in addition to the band concert, and dancing in the evening, a high-class boxing show of thirty-two scheduled rounds will be staged in front of the grandstand of the ball park under the auspices of the Eagles.

There will be four bouts on the card, the main bout being twelve rounds between Frankie Nessler, of Cincinnati, and Johnny Ruhl, of Cleveland, two fighters of prominence in the state.

The committee gives assurance that this is a high priced show and will excel any entertainment of the kind ever held in the city.

FRANK P. MINNELLI DIES A SUICIDE AT DELAWARE

Showman, Well Known Here. Shoots Self Through Heart.

Dependent over poor health, Frank P. Minnelli, aged fifty-one, widely known theatrical man, committed suicide by shooting himself through the heart, Monday night, says Tuesday's Delaware Gazette in telling of the showman who was well known here. The act was committed in the Pennsylvania railway yards and the deed not discovered until Tuesday morning.

That the act was entirely premeditated is evidenced by the farewell notes found in Mr. Minnelli's pockets and the fact that he had carefully planned for his suicide. In a note addressed to his brother he left this statement or the newspapers: "I wish to make this statement, that untold suffering has justified this act."

Mr. Minnelli left his home on Fountain avenue shortly after the dinner hour Monday afternoon. About 7 o'clock he called his sister, Miss Anna Main, upon the telephone and asked if supper was over. She told him they had finished, but to come home and she would prepare him something. "No, I'm too sick to eat," was his reply, and he added, "Good-by. I'll see you all some time."

When 11 o'clock arrived and Mr. Minnelli had not returned, all the places where he was known to frequent were called by the members of the family, but they could get no trace of him. The first intimation they had of Mr. Minnelli's fate was the call from Coroner Wray Davies, about six o'clock Tuesday morning.
